Boarding Policy

All animals must have current vaccinations, including Bordetella and Parvo/Leptospirosis (these two vaccines are given every six months). If your pet is due for vaccinations within two weeks, shots must be given for your animal to board here. Animals must have a bath when entering the kennel if fleas are present. This will be done at the owner's expense. This is to prevent the spread of fleas and ticks in our kennel. If the owner requests a bath, cats which are unmanageable at the time of the bath will be sedated, and a charge for this service will be posted to your account. We recommend that you leave ALL toys and other material items at home. Brown Animal Clinic will not be held responsible for items left with your pet. In case of a hurricane or other natural or manmade disaster, we will do our best to secure the safety of your pet, but we cannot be held responsible for your pet's fate. I understand and agree to all of the above.

If you are leaving more than one animal for boarding, would you like them to stay together?
 Yes No

If yes, which animals would you like in the same cage/run? _____

Some animals do not do well boarding in the same cage. Cage aggression or feeding time may be a problem. If your animals have a history of fighting we do not recommend they stay together. Brown Animal Clinic will not be held responsible for any damage the said animals may do to each other. If medical care is needed, the owner will be fully responsible for the charges.
